SEYMOUR, INDIANA, WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 25, 1912.

PRICE TWO CENTS

COUNCIL DECIDES UPON LARGER LEVY

Taxes for the Coming Year Will Probably Be Raised to $1.40 on $100.

$25 FOR THE GENERAL FUND

Levy for the Library is Left at .04 and Hospital W'll Get .01 Instead of .02.

At a special meeting of the council last night it was practically agreed to fix the tax levy for the coming year at $1.40 on the hundred dollars which is an increase of 25 cents over the levy for the present year. There was considerable discussion about the financial difficulty and especially relative to the bond issue or temporary loan.

While the matter was not definitely decided last night, it was practically agreed to fix the assessment at $1.40 to be divided as follows:

General fund.....$1.25
Sinking fund.....10
Library fund.....04
Hospital fund.....01

There are several changes from the levy of last year, the general fund being increased 25 cents on the hundred dollars and a decrease in the hospital levy of one cent on the hundred dollars. Under the proposed new levy the hospital will receive about $300.

The question regarding the levy for the library was given special consideration especially since the library board had given notice that mandamus proceedings would be instituted to place a levy of 6 cents on the hundred dollars. This was the amount asked by the library board. In asking for the levy the board contended that the library law provided that it should be given the final power in fixing the levy for the library and that the council had no authority to change it.

The members of the council are of the opinion that the city library is not under the regular library law as it was built by Andrew Carnegie after certain conditions had been fulfilled. One of these conditions was that the city should contribute $1,000 each year for the maintenance of the institution. The council points out that the city has fulfilled its agreement and that the duty of the library board is to supervise the expenditures. The library levy is the same as last year.

The total valuation of the assessable property in Seymour is given at $3,070,000 which means that with the levy of $1.25 on the hundred dollars there will be over $38,000 for the general fund. With the income derived from the liquor licenses, dog licenses and other sources of income, the city would receive about $53,000 next year.

The councilmen seemed to realize that the economic policy must be followed strictly next year in order that the indebtedness be reduced. Several of the councilmen are aware that considerable money has been spent this year which could have well been saved, as the work for which it was spent was not absolutely necessary at this time. Some of the councilmen declare that they will guard the treasury more carefully next year and that every effort will be made to pay off as much of the indebtedness as possible.

City Engineer E. B. Douglass has completed the assessment roll for the new improvements, and the first report will be given at the meeting Thursday night.

NEW CASES FILED

Business Will be Heavy at October Term of Court.

A number of new cases have been filed in the Jackson circuit court during vacation and it is expected that the October term of court will be a busy one. The next term of court will begin Tuesday, October 14 and several important cases will be tried. It is probable that the case of Oliver Snyder, for burglary will be called during the coming term. Snyder is still at the reformatory at Jeffersonville and is reported to be recovering from his injuries.

Among the new cases which have been filed are:

Thixton, Millet Co. vs William Schroer, on account.

Daniel C. Gimason vs William V. Snyder, et al note and foreclosure of mortgage.

Lewis Bros., assignor vs Oscar Allen, assignee, assignment.

Jas. A. Williams vs Arthur Cropper, possession of real estate and damages.

COUNTY SCHOOLS

Practically all of Them Will Be Open by Next Monday.

Already a large number of the township schools have started their fall and winter term and practically all of the schools in the county will be open by next Monday. The attendance is reported to be unusually large this year and some of the smaller schools are crowded. In many of the districts there is a growing sentiment in favor of consolidated schools, as it is believed that better work can be given than when the schools are conducted in several different buildings.

The corps of teachers selected for the county schools is unusually strong this year, and a most successful year is expected. The schools which opened last Monday report that the work is progressing nicely and that the pupils are showing much enthusiasm and interest in their studies.

EVENING HAT

An odd hat of black tulle trimmed with rows of black pearls and covered with a huge drooping bunch of bird of paradise feathers, as the latest creation of the Paris milliner. The feathers are placed in such a manner as to fall gracefully about the side of the wearer's face.

TWO NEAT COTTON DRESSES FOR EARLY FALL OUTINGS

Costumes Easy to Wash, and May Be Made Up in Almost Any Kind of Thin Material.

Either of these simple dresses would be found easy to wash, and might be made in any cotton material.

The one on the left is in pale pink cotton voile with a ring spot of a darker shade. The skirt is made with a front panel and band at foot cut in one, and set on with a piping of pink mercerized lawn; scallops are cut in sides of panel, in which buttons are sewn. The bodice also has a panel front, trimmed to match; a lace collar and black satin bow add a smartness.

Materials required: 4½ yards voile 40 inches wide, 1 dozen buttons, ¼ yard lawn 40 inches wide for piping.

Gray and white striped gingham is used for the other design. It is made with a deep band at foot of skirt, set on with a piping of material cut on the cross, and beaded at sides and back with material cut so that the stripes run horizontally.

The bodice is Magyar, and has a yoke of lace with a strip of insertion beneath; material in the cross outlines the yoke. Lace is used for the cuffs.

Materials required: 5 yards gingham 32 inches wide, ¼ yard insertion, ¾ yard lace, 1 dozen buttons.

Simple Trimmings.

Very little trimming is required for the school frock. This little may be applied in the shape of a little handwork, ornamenting the yoke, the collar and the cuffs, or perhaps the little strap which marks the side closing. It should be sparingly used, however, and the design should be of the simplest. Next to the touch of handwork comes braid, and very little, again, of this is used. It adds a trim, tailored finish to many a collar, and loops of it are certainly easier to make than buttonholes. The large bound buttonholes are used as decoration features in connection with buttons. A few well-chosen buttons will often add all the trimming that may be desired.

More Black and White.

The black charmeuse or fine cloth skirt—with the short cutaway "Directoire" coat in white charmeuse, is particularly smart; especially when it has large black buttons and is worn with a folded jabot of corresponding period. This has certainly been the best class of model this season, and rumor tells us that "Directoire" modes are in no

Health & Beauty Hints
By Katherine Morton

For the restoration of energy after a hard day's work there is nothing like a warm bath and a rest for ten minutes or more in a darkened room. You may think you are too tired for the bath, but you are wrong. It is just what you need, the tub so soothing to nerves, so cleansing to the skin and rejuvenating to looks.

The skin plays a most important part in the economy of human health good looks. According to science, it has a remarkable history, this wonderful covering of the body with the innumerable ducts and underlying glands. From it, we are told, all the senses are derived, and it is now the seat of several important bodily functions, while it seems to play some very mysterious part in the moral life. It performs the duties of kidneys and lungs, warns us when we are too cold or too warm, and casts off much of the poisonous wastes of the body in the form of water and oil and rancid odors. The cleansing bath, then, is a necessity for health and looks, and our need of the watery element does not seem strange to scientists who argue that all animal forms, including the progenitors of man, once lived in the sea. Whether they did or not, the woman used to the daily bath knows that she looks better after one, just as she knows that life has more snap when she is well dressed and is going to have a good time.

For the business woman who carries her office troubles home with her the prolonged bath at bedtime will be found an excellent sedative, although it occasionally happens that one must get used to late tubbing.

The water should be of the temperature of the body or higher, as it is pleasant, with the room comfortably warm. The bath may be continued for 15 or 20 minutes, for the long moment in the water is needed to reduce the mental stress. For constant sleeplessness many doctors consider the warm bath the best of all treatments.

The daily bath must be taken according to individual preference, but it is generally agreed that more benefits are obtained from a warm tub and a gradual cooling of the water than from a cold plunge. The needle spray, with the temperature of the water first hot and then changing to cold, has a very tonic effect on the skin, and gives all the body a refreshed and delicious feeling. But the daily bath, however taken, is an absolute requirement for the woman who needs to appear well groomed and whose desire is to keep herself in a good physical condition.

Eat slowly at meals and talk with the pleasant people at table, for the stomach takes kindly to a little gossiping, doing its work far more serenely with pleasant table talk than without it. If you feel sleepy on going to bed try sipping a glass of warm milk, for in all probability the wakefulness comes from the emptiness of the stomach. The warm milk will act as a soporific, particularly if you stop thinking about the worries and do a little deep breathing after you are in bed.

All work and no play will make the business girl a dull one, so pray lay out some little part of the week's wages for entertainment. Go to the theater, accept a week-end invitation whenever you can, give little Sunday afternoon teas and go to them. Amusement, remember, is an actual need of heart and mind, but the more of it taken in the open air the better. A taste for golf and tennis and the wit to get time for these games have saved more hardworking people from the asylum than "you could shake a stick at."

After any hard mental application a change off into some light manual job or other is also very beneficial, for some work of the hands seems to be necessary for the entire health.

About the stem of the bouquet had been wrapped a piece of waxed sandwich paper and tied with string. Over this was placed the tin foil used for flowers.

They kept beautifully fresh, and this fact is well worth knowing. Do this immediately when taking the nosegay from the water.

To Revive Flowers.

The fashion for wearing the small, compact nosegays, with their holders of lace paper, is a pretty one. Many women despair of the fact that flowers quickly fade when worn by them.

An amateur gardener confided the secret which kept her bunch of violets fresh during an entire evening. The simple method was this:

About the stem of the bouquet had been wrapped a piece of waxed sandwich paper and tied with string. Over this was placed the tin foil used for flowers.

They kept beautifully fresh, and this fact is well worth knowing. Do this immediately when taking the nosegay from the water.

Value of Percale.

Not every woman appreciates the qualities of pure white percale for summer gowns. This fabric is much used by trained nurses for lightweight uniforms which may be laundered to spike and spanness with much less labor than linen requires.

Dress is never to be despised by any woman who has her living to earn, for becoming and appropriate attire stimulates a woman's pride in herself, and is all powerful at this time, so adding to her looks in a double way.

In fact, even if you fancy yourself actually plain with a systematic study of the art of dress it is in your power to make yourself invincible both in a business and a social way—but this means, of course, that office clothes and the coiffure must be appropriate to a busy sphere.

Collars and Cuffs.

Detachable collar and cuffs are always a good idea. These may be made from linen, pique, or any of the lingerie materials. Sometimes a plaid or striped fabric is corralled for this purpose.

A little of the plaid or striped silk can be used most effectively to give the desired touch of color to an otherwise sombre blue serge dress. It may be added as a hem, with the yoke and sleeves of the plaid in true kimono style, or it may only appear as a binding to the dress, with perhaps a perky little tie of it to hold together the collar. It will prove

CONVENIENT IN SEWING ROOM

Handy Apron Will Save Time for the Woman Who Has Much of This Work to Do.

A very convenient apron to don when in the sewing room is made of white lawn and white dotted swiss. This is cut 18 inches long and 27 inches wide. The swiss is placed over the lawn and both cut rounding on the lower edge. About nine inches from this edge the swiss is cut away in a sweeping curve toward the waist line and the edges are bound with narrow bias bands of lawn or narrow satin ribbon in some pretty light shade. This forms two openings like pockets, for the upper part of the swiss is caught into the waistband with the lawn; this band, by the way, may be of ribbon matching that which binds the apron. In this deep pocket can be slipped the spools of thread, scissors and pieces of material on which you are working. It solves the problem of sewing on the porch, for it is held all the necessary materials, and it can be taken off and folded with the work inside, if you wish to discontinue your sewing for a little while.

Bracelet Watch.

To travel without having a time-piece in a place where it may readily be consulted, is generally acknowledged to be so great a nuisance, that nearly every woman or girl who is contemplating a journey of any extent is providing herself with a bracelet watch to be worn on the left arm between the wrist and the elbow. This timepiece may be as expensive as the prospective traveler can afford. It may be of solid gold or silver; the mechanism of Swiss workmanship embedded upon a bracelet formed of a band of metal or of a succession of links. Or it may be of enamelled metal, of gun or plated silver. Emminently practical bracelet timepiece outfit shows the watch works imbedded in a pigskin, sealskin or morocco half-case that is cut in one with a broad band fastening at the under side of the forearm with a small buckle of the trunk type.

Save the Pins.

A good idea after buying a paper of new pins is to cut one line off at a time and not to dive into the whole paper at once. A sewing basket should have its pincushion well supplied with pins, and when sewing a box should be near at hand into which all the pins can be tossed in a hurry. The floor will be spared its usual pin collection when sewing days come around.

A pin tray or small pincushion should be on every girl's or woman's bureau, and the pins should be put into these at night, when, perhaps, a pin or two will have to be taken out of the stock collar or belt. The pins used in pinning on a veil should always be put back in the veiling after it has been carefully folded up and before placing in the hatbox or bureau drawer.

Dainty Waists.

White satin waists are exquisitely dainty, but it is to be feared that the daintiness of such a waist will be very evanescent. So only the woman who can afford the somewhat high cost of constant dry cleaning may indulge in white satin fall shirts—unless she cares to "do them up" herself. There is a special washable satin that comes for these white waists, but the best of tub satins must be handled with extreme care if it is to survive even one laundering and retain its pristine luster and richness of texture. Wash the washable satin in soft water and a suds of pure white soap. Wring it not and rub it not, but rinse in several clear, cool waters, and iron when almost dry, with thin muslin between the satin and the iron. So only will you save the luster and the texture of the white satin shirt.

Back of Mother's Gown.

Not for years past have fashions in gown backs been better adapted to the development of a matronly figure. The habit and the panel back have gone out of favor and in their place are the inverted plait which obviously cannot draw below the hips, the position back which may be extended to the hem of the skirt, if desired, and the position sash-end with wide length of silk or satin or fine cloth may be made to disguise the shape of the figure as completely as does an undraped tunic. If mother fancies a separate skirt and blouse she may have that sort of costume and feel certain that it becomes her, since the narrow skirts of taffeta and soft fabrics often have smoothly fitted front and side forms, but backs cut straight and gathered into a waistband, the plackets coming at the left side and fastening invisibly over that nipp.

Choosing a Hat.

Women cannot grumble this season at the unsuitability of models, for styles are so varied that there are shapes enough to go round and to set off to the best advantage each individual type of face.

Some women have a way of selecting their hats rather at random, without sufficiently studying effect. Now, it takes time to choose properly, and it needs a sympathetic friend or saleswoman. One has respect for the woman who is courageous enough to express an opinion and is not only an automaton paid to sell for some domestic manager. A successful milliner is an artist; her assistants should be artists, too—clever enough to understand that their clients are there to be suitably baited.

FEATHERED MILLINERY

ty which lies in feathers. Wings are made in an almost endless variety of shapes and those medium in size or small are favorites.

Next to wings, ostrich feathers are best liked. These are used on dresser hats as a rule, although all feathers appear on all sorts of hats. Narrow bands made of ostrich feathers, long "quill" effects with curled heads, innumerable wreaths and pompons and beautiful sprays and tufts of plumes are shown, in colors that are enchanting, and in the snowiest white and richest black.

The bird of Paradise is the ambition of those who dare think of being reckless with money and is worth far more than its weight in gold. The aigrette compels admiration but sells better in the imitation than in the real feather. On account of the sentiment against wearing it and laws in some states operating against it. But imitations are good enough to answer its purpose, and there are plenty of airy substitutes.

There are bands and breasts of feathers very handsomely wrought; those of the neck feathers of peacocks are especially brilliant, and the feather makers have covered entire hat-shapes with small feathers, finely sewed to a foundation, present to us the appreciation of their designers of the wonderful beauty of nature's incomparable colorings. These "fancy feathers" as they are termed in millinery, open our eyes and make us more observant of the world of beauty.

TO WEAR WITH FINE BLOUSE

"Pinafore Gown" of Linen Is One of the Newest and Best of the Designs Offered.

For smarter wear there is a beautiful model of very fine linen. This is a pinafore top with straps over the shoulders, and is intended to be worn with a fine blouse. The upper part of this, including the little scooped-out apron top and bib, as well as the lower part to below the hips, is a mass of thick embroidery in soft, glossy, white thread in a bold design of flowers and leaves in relief. From beneath this embroidered top there falls a round skirt of linen plainly hemmed and lightly gathered into it. The corsage worn with it is of white tulle, with revers and cuffs of embroidered linen.

For smart afternoon occasions one sees a good deal of the old-fashioned plum color which our grandmothers delighted in for their stiff silks and brocades. A costume of fine crepe de chine in this tone had a wide skirt, knife-kilted from waist to hem. With this there was a little cutaway coat of the same color and material with orange silk revers and cuffs lightly braided with soutache, with a touch of some really good lace introduced into the scheme.

Boudoir Headdresses.

Boudoir headdresses are so dainty that it is almost impossible to resist the temptation to wear them publicly. The latest English model is shaped like an Anne Boleyn cap. Usually the crown is made wholly of shadow net and edged with French valenciennes, but it may be of tucked mull and cluny, and—if expense be not an object—of Duchesse lace. But the cap positively must have a trailing vine of tiny flowers in satin, outlining its shape sharply and drawn together at the back with a soft ribbon bow. These caps are lovely in all-white, all-cream, or all-mauve, and they are wondrous odd and chic in dull gray relieved by tiny flowers and soft ribbons in mauve tones.

Hatless Craze Will Not Take.

Only a small number of Parisian women have dared to venture forth with the sunshade instead of the hat to protect their heads from the rays of the sun. This fad is not likely to create much stir or disturb the mandate of fashion very seriously, for the idea of a well-dressed woman without a hat is somewhat incongruous.

A craze of this kind originates not so much from hygienic motives, but from the desire—for sensation, and women who appear hatless among the fashionable promenaders are those who appear in lingerie gowns in December and wear furs in June.

skirt, also the bodice, which has a pretty shaped collar of material laid over a yoke and revers of figured foulard; this is also used for the cuffs.

Hat of Tagel to match, trimmed with a narrow black ribbon round the crown and an aigrette at the side.

Materials required: 5 yards cloth 44 inches wide, ¼ yard foulard 40 inches wide, 1 dozen buttons.

The brocaded silks and velvets have never been so high in favor. They are trimmed with metallic lace and fur at the French openings.

SIGNS POINT TO A "DARK HORSE"

New York Republicans Apparently Perplexed.

A MIGHTY QUEER CONVENTION

Several Unprecedented Features Mark Today's Gathering at Saratoga, Among Which Are Noted Apathy of Party Leaders, Slim Attendance and Apparent Inability to Unite on Any of the Avowed Candidates.

Saratoga, N. Y., Sept. 25.—In many respects this is a mighty queer Republican convention. In the first place there is the slimmest attendance of any convention within the annals of the party in this state. Usually 5,000 persons attend a Republican state convention, no matter where held in the state or in what month of the year. All told after careful investigation, there are not more than 1,500 present on the field, and when it is recalled that of this number 1,015 are delegates, it will be easily apparent that there is either a lack of interest in the result of this convention or that folks are too busy to leave their vocations to attend a political gathering. Then, too, there is only a meager representation of the notable men of the party.

Senator Root, William Barnes, B. B. Odell, Mr. Ivins, Mr. Berri, Mr. Payne and several others, including Chairman Parson and President Koenig, sat in a spacious room in one of the big cottages of the United States hotel discussing planks to be submitted to the committee on resolutions. Apparently they have taken no interest in the fortunes of the various candidates for governor and for state officers. The open and avowed candidates for governor are ex-Judge Job Hedges, ex-Speaker Wadsworth, and ex-Representative Bennet. But the delegates are doing a good deal of thinking themselves. Many are inclined to insist upon Oscar S. Straus's nomination, even though most of the leaders do not see their way clear to nominate Mr. Straus and preserve the autonomy of their state organization. Ex-Attorney General John C. Davies, however, declared that the Republicans could do no better or wiser act.

While admitting Mr. Straus's vote getting powers, the leaders object to his nomination in this convention because he has arrayed himself with Colonel Roosevelt in his attacks on the Republican party, both in the state and the nation.

There is a statement going the rounds to the effect that eventually Secretary of War Henry M. Stimson will come to the front as the leading candidate for governor. The strength of Mr. Stimson, it was declared, would be that he, more than any other candidate, would represent the constitutional qualities and sane administration of President Taft. On the other hand the delegates who believe in Hedges, Wadsworth and Bennet assert that Mr. Stimson's nomination would not do at all; that the opposition would criticize and attack it as unwarranted evidence of presidential interference in a state convention and that the results on election day would recall 1882, when President Arthur dictated the nomination of his secretary of the treasury, Charles J. Folger.

There is a suspicion, however, that some hitherto unmentioned Republican is to run away with the nomination for governor. This suspicion is indefinable, but it is in the air.

Beck Condemns New Law.

New York, Sept. 25.—In an opinion written by James M. Beck for the American Newspaper Publishers' association, the new federal law affecting newspapers and other periodicals, a rider of the postoffice appropriation bill, approved on Aug. 24, 1912, is set down as "unconstitutional and void."

Auto Bandits Again Busy.

New York, Sept. 25.—Auto bandits again became active when two well-dressed men, ignoring the presence of nearby policemen, blackjacked John Popper, a merchant at Ninth avenue and Seventeenth street, then sped away in a motor car with $1,551 swag.

Baby Scalded to Death.

Shelbyville, Ind., Sept. 25.—Earl Kanarr, eighteen months old, son of W. M. Kanarr, who moved here a few days ago from Greensburg, Ind., was fatally scalded at his home when he boiled a boiler of hot water upon his head.

ANDREW G. CURTIN
Pennsylvania's War Governor Who Called Notable Conference.

THE TURNING POINT IN GREAT STRUGGLE

Memorable Conference Called By Governor Curtin.

Altoona, Pa., Sept. 25.—Early this morning President Taft arrived here to make a speech at the meeting of the Loyal War Governors' association and review the parade celebrating the semi-centennial of the notable conference of loyal governors called by Andrew Gregg Curtin, then governor of Pennsylvania, in 1862, just after the battle of Antietam. The decision reached at this conference, all the loyal governors earnestly pledging their utmost support to President Lincoln's course, proved a rallying point in the cause of the north and is regarded as one of the most important events connected with the great war.

A monster crowd has gathered here for the semi-centennial celebration, which will continue three days. The president will depart this afternoon for Philadelphia, where his private car will be attached to the Colonial express for Boston. He will arrive in Boston early tomorrow morning.

BIG CROWDS

Greet Roosevelt on His Trip Through Oklahoma.

McAlester, Okla., Sept. 25.—Enormous crowds, full of enthusiasm, acclaimed Colonel Roosevelt from Tulsa, the first point reached in the state, to McAlester, where he spoke last night. Ten thousand people jammed the grounds at Tulsa; 35,000 the Oklahoma state fair grounds at Oklahoma City, and 2,000 the opera house at McAlester, though 15,000 clamored for admission. Ten thousand people surrounded his car at Shawnee, and other thousands at Chandler, Holdenville and Sapulpa. It was an astonishing outpouring of people to see the new party nominee.

Spain's Backwardness.

Madrid, Sept. 25.—As the result of an investigation ordered by King Alfonso, the minister of the interior reports that 60 per cent of the land in Spain is uncultivated and 38 per cent is utterly without irrigation. The report shows that 4,500 villages are without roads or railroads; 30,000 towns and villages have no schools, and 12,000,000 of Spain's 17,000,000 inhabitants can neither read nor write.

TERSE TELEGRAMS

The New York state Democratic convention will assemble in Syracuse on Oct. 1.

Prince Rene of Parma, the younger of two brothers who were injured in an automobile accident at Wiener Bustadt, Austria, is dying.

One hundred and fifteen persons were drowned on the Northern Dvina river near Archangel as a result of a collision between two steamers.

Head Constable Radhilal, a prominent investigator of the notorious Decca conspiracy in India, was murdered at Calcutta. There is no clue to the perpetrators of the crime.

Reynolds Forsbrey, a gunman and burglar, who while accused of two murders escaped from the Tombs prison in New York Sept. 2 last, has been captured in that city.

Governor Eugene N. Foss of Massachusetts celebrated the fifty-fourth anniversary of his birth Tuesday by winning the Democratic renomination for governor in the state primaries.

James C. Croppen, Commissioner Waldo's predecessor as New York police commissioner, told the aldermanic committee that he got out of the police department because his conscience would not permit him to make certain promotions which Mayor Gay demanded.

The captain of a company of German soldiers whose men were charged with cheating in a shooting competition, was sentenced to confinement in his quarters for a week. A musketry sergeant was condemned to four months' imprisonment, and other non-commissioned officers were placed under arrest for two or three weeks.

GUARDS SENT TO SANTO DOMINGO

Receipt of Customs Being Interfered With.

UNCLE SAM WON'T STAND IT

The Tendency of Rival Revolutionary Leaders in the Constantly Troubled Isle to Make of the Customs Houses the Chief Prizes in the War Game Is to Be Sternly Suppressed by a Detachment of American Marines.

Washington, Sept. 25.—To protect the customs houses there, a force of 750 marines will be sent to Santo Domingo. President Taft had a conference with Beekman Winthrop, assistant secretary of the navy, at which Mr. Taft approved the plan of sending an armed detachment into Santo Domingo to prevent interference with the customs receivership, which has been administered for the last several years by the United States. The marines will be drawn from the Atlantic coast stations, and will sail from Philadelphia on the transport Prairie tomorrow.

Brigadier General Frank Meyer, U. S. A., chief of the insular bureau of the war department, and W. T. S. Doyle, chief of the Latin American division of the state department, will accompany the expedition to supervise the distribution of the marine guards through the country. The detachment will be in command of Colonel F. J. Moses, U. S. M. C.

There has been a smouldering revolutionary movement in the island for more than a year, although this has caused no actual assault upon any of the American customs houses.

The gunboat Wheeling, which has been in West Indian waters for some months, heretofore has been sufficient to protect the customs houses located in the coast towns. Recently, however, the revolutionary activity has been increasing and the interior customs houses on the mountainous border between Hayti and Santo Domingo have been threatened. In addition to the revolutionary activity there has been more or less smuggling across the border between Santo Domingo and Hayti, and about a year ago several American customs officials were killed in a clash with the smugglers.

There is a border dispute between Hayti and Santo Domingo which also has tended to produce conditions of outlawry in the interior of the island. The political unrest culminated last August in the assassination of President Leconte of Hayti. About a year ago the president of Santo Domingo also was killed.

The officials of the state and war departments are determined not to allow the customs houses in Santo Domingo to be used as prizes for successful revolutionists, and it was decided by the state and navy departments to send a force of marines to Santo Domingo to protect the places from attack. The expedition is said to be temporary, but it is admitted that the marines will be allowed to remain there as long as they are needed.

GRAND JURY

Will Be Called on to Investigate Recent Bank Failure.

Washington, Sept. 25.—Department of justice officials decline to say whether their investigation of the failure of the Second National bank of Cincinnati would warrant prosecution by the authorities of George B. Cox, Republican boss of that city, but it is understood that nothing thus far has been unearthed which would warrant action against Mr. Cox. Cox was a heavy stockholder in the Ford & Johnson Furniture company, loans to which caused the downfall of the Second National. Cox was not an officer in the Second National, but was an officer in a trust company which collapsed at the same time.

It is understood that the case of E. E. Galbreath, who was the president of the Second National and a heavy stockholder in the furniture company, will be presented to the October federal grand jury.

Boy Admits Big Theft.

Pensacola, Fla., Sept. 25.—William H. Bell, a twenty-year-old bank clerk and member of one of the most prominent families in the city, has confessed that last Tuesday night he robbed the First National bank of $55,000. He was one of the young men designated to carry $75,000 to the L. & N. train that was said to have been robbed recently.

Why He Opposed It.

London, Sept. 25.—Advocates of admitting women to the legal profession failed to impress the annual conference of the Law Society at Cardiff. The conference by a large majority turned down the proposal. One opponent objected to it on the ground that women had not yet learned to b

No Further Delay.

New York, Sept. 25.—There will be no further delay in trying Lieutenant Charles Becker for the murder of Herman Rosenthal. Each side appears to be so well satisfied that neither will interpose objections to the trial proceeding on Oct. 7, the date set by Justice Goff.

JAMES SMITH

Former United States Senator Failed in Desire to Go Back.

PICKED CANDIDATE WINS OUT EASILY

Wilson's Man Carries the New Jersey Primaries.

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 25.—Former Representative William Hughes of Paterson, as indicated by returns from the primary elections held throughout New Jersey yesterday, has received the endorsement of a large majority of the Democratic voters for the United States senate.

With a few exceptions the returns justify the conclusion that Hughes carried the various counties by from two to three times the vote cast for former United States Senator Smith, his principal Democratic antagonist.

Hughes was running as the picked candidate of Governor Wilson, and Smith was allied with the anti-Wilson forces throughout the state.

The vote for the third Democratic candidate, F. H. McDermott of Newark, was a negligible quantity, as his candidacy was never taken seriously. The Republican preferential vote was cast almost unanimously for United States Senator Briggs, the only member of his party to file a petition.

The third party movement cut no figure in the primary, as there is no provision in the law under which such a party could be recognized either in the preferential vote for United States senator or in the nominations for congress, state senators, members of the legislature and county and city offices, which were also made by the two major parties.

WANTED IN OHIO

Giant Negro Known as the Whispering Burglar, Taken at Mt. Vernon.

Mt. Vernon, N. Y., Sept. 25.—It has developed that Harry Jones, known as the "whispering burglar" to the local police, and who is locked up in the White Plains jail awaiting trial for the robbery of the residence of Frank R. Chambers, is wanted in Ohio for murder. Chief of Police Foley says that the prisoner, according to information he has received, is known as Fred Fawcett, alias Monk Fawcett, alias Harry Harper, and that he is under indictment at Youngstown, O., for the killing of Patrolman Alfred Evans, Nov. 4, 1911.

Jones is a giant negro who is alleged to have served three years in the Columbus, (O.) prison.

Teachers as Detectives.

Marion, Ind., Sept. 25.—As a result of "blind tiger" investigations made by C. O. St. John and J. A. Crawford, teachers at the Marion high school, seven men pleaded guilty to the illegal sale of liquor before Mayor Wilson and were fined $50 each. The school teachers said they had no trouble in getting in any of the places, and while strangers to the proprietors, obtained whisky at each place.

SHIPPERS FACE GRAVE PROBLEM

Car Shortage Is Giving No End of Concern.

STATE COMMISSION ACTIVE

Co-operating With Railroad Officials, Indiana State Railroad Commission Is Urging Shippers in This State to Do All in Their Power to Facilitate the Movement of Cars by Prompt Loading and Unloading.

Indianapolis, Sept. 25.—The car shortage problem has become grave in Indiana, according to assertions of attaches of the state railroad commission. The shortage all over the country has been the subject of many conferences of railroad officials on all lines for the last month and the situation is growing more serious daily. The state commission some time ago issued a circular to Indiana shippers, urging them to co-operate in the movement to facilitate the movements of cars by quick loading and unloading. Farmers in all parts of the country are unable to get cars to market their grain and coal men and others are as seriously handicapped. According to figures given out by the Indiana commission there was a shortage of 6,400 cars in the states of Indiana, Ohio, Michigan and western Pennsylvania last Saturday. Care on the part of shippers to expedite the movement of any cars billed to or sent out by them should help the situation, according to the attaches of the commission.

THE DEFICIENCY BILL.

The deficiency appropriation bill annually passed by Congress is now of peculiar interest to students of government. Its sum marks the difference between what Congress guessed the Government needed for the ensuing fiscal year, when appropriating in the general appropriation bills, and what the end of the year disclosed was actually needed. In a way, also, it is an index to the economy or extravagance with which the Executive Departments have been conducted.

The Democratic Congress which recently adjourned was called upon to provide only six million dollars in the deficiency appropriation bill. This is the smallest sum the measure has carried since 1886. It breaks a twenty-six years' record.

The smallest of the sum indicates that the last Republican Congress, the one which appropriated for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1912, drafted its general appropriation bills on sound and scientific lines. It also indicates that the Executive Departments have administered their affairs with singular efficiency and economy. The bill testifies to the excellent business management of governmental affairs under Republican administration.

In contrast with this record it has now become apparent at Washington that Congress next winter will be called upon to provide at least $30,000,000 in the deficiency appropriation bill, or five times as much as at the recent session.

This is because the Democratic Congress, after having indulged too lavishly in "pork barrel" appropriating, cut down regular appropriations to an impossible point in order to make a false showing of economy.

Elections will have passed when the same Congress will have to pass the huge deficiency. In the meantime, even with an expectation of a deficiency bill, much of the useful work of the Government is crippled. Democratic "economy" comes high.

Protecting His Stock.

An Italian who kept a fruit stand was much annoyed by possible customers who made a practice of handling the fruit and pinching it, thereby leaving it softened and often spoiled. Exasperated beyond endurance, he finally put up a sign, which read: "If you mus pincha da fruit—pincha da cocoanut!"—Lippincott.

Dick Turpin Pistol Found.

In the removal of a plaster ceiling and oak paneling of the Jacobean room in the famous Reindeer Inn at Banbury, England, which has been bought by Lord Curzon of Kedleston, workmen found in the rafters a double flintlock horse pistol inlaid with gold, inscribed, "Presented to Dick Turpin at the White Bear Inn, Drury Lane, February 7, 1735."

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

UNIVERSAL KINDNESS.

If you want something for cool weather reading that is worth while, get a recent book, "A Vagabond's Journey Around the World."

It is the story of the author, who traveled around the globe on foot and penniless, mingling with the plain people of every clime and country and living in their homes.

Often he suffered the pangs of hunger and he encountered perils by land and sea.

However—

Always and everywhere, he met with human kindness.

Wherever he traveled, in the lands of the Eskimo as in the jungles of Africa, in China as in Australia, whether the people he met were white or black or yellow, always they displayed the spirit of human brotherhood.

On board a steamer where he worked with the coolies, he found a bunkie the first night who was as good as a brother and who shared all that he had.

In Burma an Englishman forced a handful of coins upon him, saying, "Take it, old chap, I know you do not want charity, but people were very kind to me when I was on my uppers."

The world over, hearts were soft.

The half naked woman whose home was of leaves and who had a troop of children to be fed set out the best food she could afford. She knew nothing except the man was a stranger who was hungry.

None were so poor in spirit that they were heartless.

The author found one special friend lounging on the bench at Suez, where is dumped the offscouring of the world. The man was a real tramp and together they went several thousand miles. Absolutely honest and faithful the hobo stood every test, showed many fiber and was a loyal comrade.

Well—

Is it not worth while to travel around the globe to make such a discovery?

Is it not worth while to know that you need only add the letter "e" to the word human to make it read humane? Humanity is kind.

And that makes life tolerable.

Said Robert Louis Stevenson in his letter to Edmund Gosse: "It is the history of our kindness that alone makes the world tolerable. If it were not for that, for the effect of kind words, kind looks, kind letters, multiplying, spreading, making one happy through another, and bringing forth benefits, some thirty, some fifty, some thousand fold, I should be tempted to sink our life a practical jest."

IMMEDIATE EFFECT OF GREAT KIDNEY REMEDY IS SOON REALIZED.

According to my experience I do not consider there is anything to equal Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root for kidney affection. Twice it relieved me when I was completely helpless.

The last time I was traveling in Texas, when my kidneys became affected, and for ten days I suffered excruciating pain, accompanied with severe chills. Several years previous, having been relieved of a similar attack, I naturally sought relief as before, from Swamp-Root.

After using four of the large size bottles, I was completely restored and went on my way rejoicing and praising Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. This was three years ago, and I have had no indication of the return of the affliction.

Yours very truly,

J. C. SMITH, Jr.,

RAILROADING IN 70'S

VETERAN GROWS REMINISCENT OF THE EARLY DAYS.

Complicated Office Machinery for Running the Lines Was Not Then Known and Arrangements Were of the Simplest.

Railroading and experiences with the wire in the 70's are presented by W. D. Hanchette in the Watertown Times in a letter from Richard Holden, a veteran telegrapher. Holden writes in part as follows:

"On February 1, 1870, Newton B. Hine was appointed train dispatcher to succeed Edward Warner, who left the employ of the Rome, Watertown & Ogdensburg to accept the agency of the Utica & Black River railroad, which a short time before had established a connection with the C. W. & S. H. R. R. with a through line from Utica to Watertown. Mr. Hine offered me a position as operator and I accepted the same, commencing work under him on February 14, 1872. A few months afterwards I was promoted to a train dispatcher under Mr. Hine, a position I held four years, resigning in 1876 to engage in business."

"The train dispatcher's office was, until about the year 1878, located at Watertown Junction, at which time it was moved up town to its present location. The different men that held the position as train dispatcher were not operators, they employing an operator to send their orders."

"About the year 1873 the summer travel to the Thousand Islands commenced to increase, Cape Vincent being the gateway to the Thousand Islands. The officials of the Rome, Watertown & Ogdensburg ordered two drawing-room cars to be built at the shops at Rome, being named Ontario and St. Lawrence. One of these cars was hauled into Watertown on the afternoon train from Rome, being cut out of the train at the rock cut near Pine street and run down the main line and attached to the Cape train. I remember how proud the late Frank Cornish was in riding down the straight on the first drawing-room car with his hands on the brake wheel, Mr. Cornish being a brakeman at that time."

"While the writer was a train dispatcher in 1873 or 1874, the first circus train was run over the road by the late P. T. Barnum, consisting of two trains, and was accompanied by officials of the road. While these circus trains were on the road, it was necessary to keep the dispatcher's office open at night, but at all other times, except at times during snow blockades, the office was closed at night and on Sunday, there being no freight or passenger trains run on that day except when freight accumulated at the terminals on account of blockades."

"The rolling stock of the road consisted of forty engines, all wood burners. In 1873 William Jackson, master car builder of the shops and road, located at Rome, built the first coal burner engines ever run on the road. They were named J. W. Moak and J. S. Farlow, and used on passenger trains, the engineers being Sam Purdy and Asa Rowell. The freight business and local freight office were located at the Junction, one engine named the Montreal handling all the freight during the day time only."

China Building Railroads.

China is already making progress under the new regime in providing itself with railway transportation lines. Writing to the Department of Commerce and Labor from Hongkong, United States Consul General George E. Anderson declares that there is renewed activity in the construction of the important Canton-Hankow Railways northward.

This line, which will connect Hongkong with Central China, Mr. Anderson says, is already operating to Lai Tang, a small village sixty-seven miles from Canton. Grading and bridging up to mile 79 is practically completed, but grading between there and mile 85 is backward, according to Mr. Anderson, because of the prejudice against railroads still frequently met with among the natives. Work between mile 130 and mile 140 is in progress, and that on the section up to 180 is being rapidly advanced.

Orange Optimist.

J. Willis Westlake, the noted Florida pomologist, said in a recent address at Lake Helen:

"The orange grower must be an optimist to succeed. He can't expect 10,000 oranges from every tree at the start. He should show the spirit of John Blanc."

"Blanc's first orange crop, when he settled in Florida, wasn't much to boast of. The man, however, kept up heart."

"How did your oranges do?" a friend asked him at the season's end.

"Oh, we had a few," he replied.

"Good ones?"

"Fine!" said Blanc. "My wife uses them in place of lemons. It makes quite a saving."

CHAPTER XXV.

Wherein Edith Carr Wages a Battle and Hart Henderson Stands Guard.

MANY people looked, a few followed, as Edith Carr slowly came down the main street of Mackinac, pausing here and there to note the glow of color in one small booth after another, overflowing with curios. Despite the effort she made to move lightly she was very tired, and dragged her heavy feet with an effort.

She turned at the little street leading down to the dock and went out to meet the big lake steamer ploughing up the straits from Chicago. Past the landing place, on to the very end of the pier she went, then sat down, leaned against a dock support and closed her tired eyes. When the steamer came very near she languidly watched the people lining the railing. Instantly she marked one lean, anxious face turned toward hers and with a throb of pity she lifted a hand and waved to Hart Henderson. He was the first man off the boat.

"Did you have a successful trip?" she asked.

"I accomplished my purpose. Edith, I saw some one today in the Lake Shore private hospital."

"An accident?"

"No. Nervous and physical breakdown."

"Phil said he was going back to the Limberlost."

"He went. He was there three weeks, but the strain broke him. He has an old letter in his hands that he has handled until it is ragged. He held it up to me and said, 'You can see for yourself that she says she will be well and happy, but we can't know until we see her again, and that may never be. She may have gone too near that place her father went down, some of that Limberlost gang may have found her in the forest. She may lie dead in some city morgue this instant waiting for me to find her body.'"

"Hart, for pity's sake stop!"

"I can't," cried Henderson desperately. "I am forced to tell you. They are fighting brain fever. He did go back to the swamp and he prowled it night and day. The days down there are hot now, and the nights wet with dew and cold. He paid no attention and forgot his food. A fever started, and his uncle brought him home. They've never had a word from her or found a trace of her. Mrs. Comstock thought she had gone to O'More's at Grand Rapids, so when Phil got sick she telegraphed there. They had been gone all summer, so her mother is as anxious as Phil."

"The O'Mores are here," said Edith. "I haven't seen any of them, because I haven't gone out much in the few days since we came, but this is their summer home."

"Edith, they say at the hospital that it will take careful nursing to save Phil. He says he will stay there just two days longer. The doctors say he will kill himself when he goes. He is a sick man, Edith. His hands are burning and shakky and his breath was hot against my face."

"Why are you telling me? It was a cry of acute anguish."

"He thinks you know where she is." "I do not! I haven't an idea!"

"He said it was something you said to her that made her go."

"That may be, but it doesn't prove that I know where she went."

Henderson looked across the water and suffered keenly. At last he turned to Edith and laid a firm, strong hand over hers.

"Edith," he said, "do you realize how serious this is?"

"I suppose I do."

"Do you want as fine a fellow as Phil driven any further? If he leaves that hospital now and goes out to the exposure and anxiety of a search for her there will be a tragedy that no other regrets can avert. Edith, what did you say to Miss Comstock that made her run away from Phil?"

"I told her Phil was mine! That if we were away from her an hour and back in my presence he would be to me as he always had been."

"Edith, do you believe that now?"

The beautiful head barely moved in negation. Henderson gathered both her hands in one of his and stretched an arm across her shoulders to the post to support her. She dragged her hands from him and twisted them together.

"No! I do not believe it now! I know it is not true! I killed his love for me. It is dead and gone forever. Nothing will revive it—nothing in all this world!"

She dropped back against his arm exhausted. Henderson held her and learned what suffering truly means. He fanned her with his hat, rubbed her cold hands and murmured broken, incoherent things. By and by great slow tears slipped from under her closed lids, but when she opened them her eyes were dull and hard.

Henderson thrust his handkerchief into her fingers and whispered, "Edith, the boat has been creeping up. It's very near. Maybe some of our crowd are on it. Haun't we better get away from here before it lands?"

"If I can walk," she said. "Oh, I am so dead tired, Hart!"

That was the first time in her life that Edith Carr ever had proposed to give up anything she wanted.

"Help me, Hart!"

Henderson started around the beach, assisting her all he could. Finally he stopped.

"Edith, there is no sense in this! You are too tired to go. You know you can trust me. You wait in any of these lovely places and send me. You will be safe, and I'll run. One word is all that is necessary."

"But I've got to say that word myself, Hart!"

Then write it and let me carry it. The message is not going to prove who went to the office and sent it."

"That is quite true," she said dropping wearily, but she made no movement to take the pen and paper he offered.

Henderson shot a swift glance toward the boat. Terrence O'More just had stepped from the gangplank, escorting a little daughter, so like him, it was comical. There followed a picture not easy to describe. The Angel in the full flower of her beauty, richly dressed, a laugh on her cameo face, the setting sun glinting on her gold hair, escorted by her eldest son, who held her hand tightly and carefully watched her steps. Next came Elvira, dressed with equal richness, a trifle taller and slenderer, almost the same type of coloring, but with different eyes and hair, facial lines and expression.

As the crowd pressed around the party an opening was left beside the fish sheds. Edith ran down the dock. Henderson sprang after her, catching her arm and assisting her to the street. "Help me!" she cried, clinging to him. He put his arm around her, almost carrying her out of sight into a little cove walled by high rocks at the back, where there was a clean floor of white sand, and logs washed from the lake for seats. He found one of these with a back rest, and hurrying down to the water he soaked his handkerchief and applied it to her. She passed it across her lips, over her eyes.

"Hart, what makes you?" she said wearily. "My mother doesn't care. She says this is good for me. Do you think this is good for me, Hart?"

"Edith, you know I would give my life if I could save you this," he said, and could not speak further.

He held her carefully, softly fanning her. She was suffering almost more than either of them could bear.

"I wish your boat was here," she said at last. "I want to sail fast with the wind in my face."

"There is no wind. I can get my motor around in a few minutes."

"Then get it."

"Lie on the sand. I can phone from the first booth. It won't take but a little while."

Edith lay on the white sand and Henderson covered her face with her hat. Then he ran to the nearest booth and talked imperatively. Presently he was back, bringing a hot drink that was stimulating. Shortly the motor船 was ashore and took them to the launch.

Hour after hour the boat ran up and down the shore. The moon arose and the night air grew very chilly. Henderson put on an overcoat and piled more covers on Edith.

"You must take me home," she said at last. "The folks will be uneasy."

He was compelled to take her to the cottage with the battle still raging. He went back early the next morning, but already she had wandered out over the island. Instinctively Henderson felt that the shore would attract her. There was something in the tumult of rough little Huron's waves that called to him. It was there he found her, crouching so close the water foam was dampening her skirts.

"May I stay?" he asked.

"I have been hoping you would come," she answered. "It's bad enough when you are here, but it is a little easier than bearing it alone."

"I have. I knew from the beginning that when this was over you would dislike me for having seen you suffer."

"Of course you know there is something I have got to do, Hart! Will you go with me?"

AD. TIPS FROM PHILIPPINES

"Reading Notice" of a Co-operative Publicity Company Full of Euthusiasm and Poor English.

A copy of a Philippine newspaper carries a "reading notice" ad of a co-operative publicity company at Manila. The enthusiasm, at least, of the ad is genuine, but a reading of it leads one to ask if a new grammar of English usage is being evolved in our island possessions. Some of the more stirring passages follow:

"Keeping your eye on the 'inquiry record file,' in order to determine results obtained, and simultaneously ascertain the value of your 'ad carrying publication,' is conflicting and inaccurate.

"In how many languages and dialects published (the more naturally the merrier.)

"Carefully compare the above with the trend of public opinion, whether economic, industrial, independent, or extremely politic, then, without the aid of a 'White's academic arithmetic,' the fact of whether or not, such publications as you might be interested in, are of interest to the masses is accurately ascertained.

"Any publication whose policy is directly in line with public opinion and which is published in the familiar languages of the people are capable of results.

"In the Philippine Islands, customs and traditions are different, doings are done quite distinct, and as has been repeatedly demonstrated in former articles on this subject, methods that have proved resultful in other countries, are wholly impracticable here.

It has been discovered that periodicals whose entire editions failed to elicit a single inquiry, were directly responsible for increased business. One-fourth of those, whom some advertisement have attracted make inquiries, but, most generally make a note of the article advertised and the distributor, for immediate or future reference; when ever he or some townsman are presented with the opportunity of visiting some city or the Metropolis, the article desired is purchased, and so far as the advertiser and the 'file case' is concerned, the source of such purchase is unknown.

For instance our own 'reach the people methods' might be in need of minor improvement, yet, from a standpoint of publishing the 'dope' that the people want and that is of interest to the masses, we refer you to our advertisers as to our 'being there with the goods.'

OFF THE TRACK.

To add to Bunkerton's discomfort in losing his way, he has now been brought to a standstill by the absolute impassability of the highway, and his temper, already sorely tried, finally gave way.

"What kind of people are you up here in this rotten old state?" he cried, addressing an old countryman who stood close by, inspecting his stranded car with curious eyes.

"I dunno," said the old man. "Baout the same ez most folks, I callate."

"Do you call this blankety blank scar on the face of nature a road?" roared Bunkerton.

"Not ez I knows on," returned the old man. "This here hain't the pike; it's Mose Whibley's trout stream run dry. I wondered what ye was drivin' up it for."—Harper's Weekly.

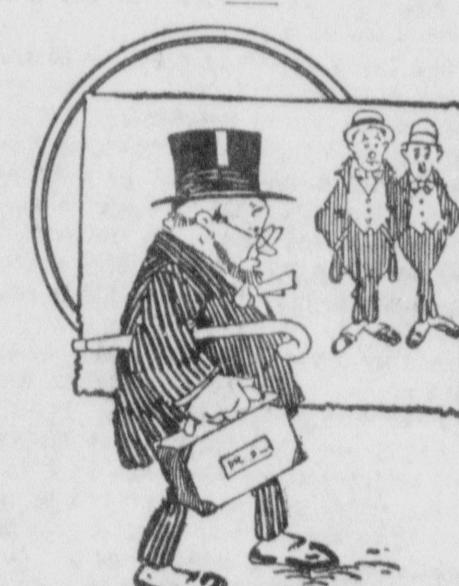

NOT RECIPROCATED.

"She doesn't impress me as being remarkable in any way."

"Wait till I tell you about her. She isn't afraid that she has a cancer."
